

Yet more absurdity! Animal Rights groups use antique and musical instrument exemptions to divide and conquer people who own and trade legal ivory. Here is a prime example of what they will continue to push for. This bill even goes so far as to explicitly authorize searches and seizures in people's homes if "any law enforcement officer" gets a warrant based on probable cause belief that you own a piece of ivory or other covered specimen.

The Environment Committee needs to put on its thinking cap and squelch this ridiculousness in its tracks.

Sincerely
